Fairhaven Militia Camps in Mattapoissett

2011 Heritage Days

By Anne Kakley

As a part of the annual Mattapoissett Heritage Days celebration, the Fairhaven Village Militia made an encampment along the Mattapoissett River on Saturday, August 6, to demonstrate what 18th century living was like. The encampment was one of several different programs, arranged by the Heritage Days Committee, that brought local history into focus for area residents.

The Fairhaven Village Militia has been a part of the annual Mattapoissett Heritage Days since the celebration's inception at the 2007 Sesquicentennial celebration. According to Fairhaven Tourism Director Christopher Richard, the Militia was incorporated in 2003 after several historical re-enactment events at Fort Phoenix proved to be successful.

"We've camped out at Fort Phoenix a couple times a year. We've participated in events at Fort Taber. We've been to Mattapoissett several years now for Heritage Days," said Mr. Richard, who plays the part of Christopher Spooner when participating with the Militia. Additionally, his wife Lori plays the part of Rachel Spooner and daughter Emily plays Sara Spooner.

Ms. Richard, as Rachel Spooner, demonstrated wool spinning on her portable spinning wheel. "Generally we use the large walking wheels when we spin wool... but I cannot bring that to camp," said Ms. Richard, who sat peacefully along the Mattapoissett River and spun wool from a Dartmouth sheep named "Ed". "I use [this wheel] for spinning flax and wool," she added.

The Militia encampment provided a glimpse into an existence free of cell phones, Internet and running water. The Militia participants demonstrated a time period when life consisted of hard work and resourceful thinking.

Militiaman Frank Mathieu played the part of Jonathan Fletcher, an escaped colonist being hidden from the British. Besides wooing the widowed Abigail Hawkins (played by Julie Moniz) in hopes of attaining inherited wealth, Mr. Mathieu's character makes sashes on an "ankle loom" to protect clothing from the wear of daily use.

"Clothing is very, very expensive. Most of it had to be imported from England," Mr. Mathieu said. "So to prevent it from wearing out, we wear this sash." Besides sashes, the loom could also make blankets, he added.

In addition to demonstrating housekeeping methods and camp life, the Militia lived up to its name by showcasing military methods of the Colonial period. They offered drill, rifle and cannon demonstrations by the Mattapoissett River. Using a double barrel rifle, Militia Commander Ellie Sylvaria yelled "fire in the hole!" before shooting gun powder into the river reeds.

"A good marksman would have been able to reload three times a minute," Ms. Richard commented while continuing to spin wool.

Across the camp, young Militia participants Emily Richard and Alex Sylvaria demonstrated colonial toys and games for children.

"This is a colonial Barbie, and this is a colonial Polly Pocket," said Ms. Richard as she held up two simple dolls. She showed children how to play a simple ball and pin game (similar to bowling), a Jacob's ladder, and a croquet game.

The Militia reported good turn-out for Saturday, but they were forced to break-up camp early due to heavy rains on Sunday morning. If you missed out on

Scavenger Hunt Recalls Old Businesses

By Laura Fedak Pedulli

Blustery weather last Saturday did not dampen the spirits of scavenger hunters seeking to unravel the mysteries of Mattapoisett's past.

Six teams of two-to-five people explored the town with a checklist in hand of riddles to uncover. Specifically, the groups had to figure out which old, once well-known businesses the riddles referred to – and some of the 12 hints included, "Once a romantic place to pick up a bottle of Italian wine for your special someone" to "A 'Bonnie' place to stop for a burger as you make your way down Route 6 to Marion."

The Scavenger Hunt was a part of Heritage Days – an annual event that evolved from Mattapoisett's Sesquicentennial celebration in 2007. Last year, the threat of Eastern equine encephalitis virus had cancelled the event, but this year Heritage Days and all of its traditions – like the scavenger hunt – lived on.

Under the guidance of Bobbi Gaspar – the coordinator of Heritage Days – the six teams traveled by car and foot to seek out answers to the clues. At stake were gift certificates to local businesses for the top two finishers. In the past, Jordan Collyer hosted the event, but this year Ms. Gaspar took the reigns. Each year, the hunt examines a different aspect of Mattapoisett history, and she said her husband came up with the idea for a business-related treasure hunt for this year.

Although the scavenger hunt is normally a two-hour affair, one team managed to find answers for all 12 hints within 40 minutes. The winning team was: Laurie Nunes, Linda Nunes, Kathy Briggs, Ray Briggs, and Barly Sullivan.

place, missing three answers but still flush with new historical knowledge on Mattapoisett.

Bill, Carolyn, and Elizabeth Foley, who just moved into Mattapoisett from Franklin, MA, still did their best learning about their new town.

"It was cool to learn about the history of the town," said Carolyn, running over the questions that had stumped the team, including the name of an upscale restaurant (Answer: Silver Gull) and where to buy liquor on Sunday (current location of Seahorse Liquors).

For Ms. Gaspar, history is alive in the town of Mattapoisett. She sees bygone residents as old friends, and expresses a strong passion for the lives that made the town what it is today.

"I'm not a townie, only second generation," joked Ms. Gaspar, noting that she moved to Mattapoisett in 1969. She listed off some of Mattapoisett's old businesses: three pharmacies, a wholesale meat market, a small supermarket, a gas station at Main Street and Depot Street, a package store, ship part store and boutique shop along Main Street – and an informal ambiance that isn't quite the same as it used to be.

"But it is still a beautiful place. I'm not longing for nostalgic times but it is a part of our history," she said.

and the school sign re-installed – indicators that the end is in sight.

The final product of the town's largest ever public works project includes an $11 million, 31,000 sq. ft. two-story addition, two new music rooms, and extensive renovation work in the main building. All classrooms, whether new or renovated, were outfitted with state-of-the-art technology including an interactive whiteboard teaching station, document camera, four portable laptops and four desktop workstations. As well as new technology, the addition is run off a new septic system and wells, with new plumbing and furniture.

The Massachusetts School Building Authority is covering approximately $17 million of the $26.5 million price tag – with the remainder being paid for by town taxpayers.

"You have to give credit to the townspeople, who stood up and made a big commitment," said Town Administrator Richard LaCamera. "When we voted on it, 70 percent were in favor of the project, 30 percent were against it. That shows the commitment of townspeople of Rochester for this project," he said.

"It's a great tribute to the people of the town of Rochester that they put this together for the kids," echoed Mr. Johnson.

Currently the contractor is wrapping up work in the cafeteria and the kitchen, areas that had required extensive renovations. The new kitchen will include week, the library shelves were re-installed and workers began moving books from the makeshift library in the addition to the library in the main building. "It's a huge step forward," he said. Teachers are receiving more ENO Board training next week to prepare for having the new technology at their disposal.

"The attitude the teachers all have is that they are so grateful for all of this wonderful new stuff and space. They know once they are in there, they can really do what they do best," Mr. Ryan added.

Mr. LaCamera said that overall, the project is "on time and under budget" although he had no specific numbers yet on the final costs. Once everything is complete, a building commissioning process will take place, during which a team representing the building committee, architect and engineering firm will go through the building "inch by inch" to create a punch list of final tasks to complete, Mr. Johnson said. Also, a testing agency will be hired to ensure all new HVAC systems are working properly.

"When you think about it, 18 and a half months ago we started. We put in a new addition in eight months, and since have renovated three sections ... I think that's pretty good," said Mr. LaCamera.

The official ribbon-cutting event for the new and improved school is scheduled for October 2 at 1:00 pm. Political dignitaries, local officials and the public are expected to attend this all-afternoon event.

Mattapoisett Walk Draws Crowd

By Joan Hartnett-Barry

Over thirty history buffs came out for a stroll through Mattapoisett Village on Sunday August 6, guided by Bette Roberts, curator of the Mattapoisett Museum and Carriage House. The walk was part of the town's Heritage Days, which ran from Friday, August 5 through Sunday, August 7.

Ms. Roberts started her walk at the museum at 5 Church Street, which was originally a Meeting House, built in 1821, and listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The walk included parts of Main Street, Water Street, Cannon Street and Church Street.

"This building has been used for town meetings, large groups and various denominations have worshipped here," said Ms. Roberts. The last religious group to use the building was a Baptist church, thus the side street which abuts the museum is Baptist Street.

Ms. Roberts explained that when the building was no longer used, the descendants of the Baptist minister left a fund for the maintenance of the building and said that "it cannot be torn down or used for commercial purposes... and only used for educational, historical or cultural purposes... and must hold two religious services each year."

This tradition continues and the museum holds two ecumenical services in the spring and fall each year. "Michelle Gordon, the organist from the Mattapoisett Congregational Church comes and plays the pump organ for the services," said Ms. Roberts.

In the 1960's, Charles Mendell, Society president Seth Mendell's father, got the idea to turn the building into a museum housing only Mattapoisett historical items.

"Volunteers went door to door in Mattapoisett asking residents if they had anything in their home that was old and had a Mattapoisett connection and if they'd be willing to donate it to put in the new museum," said Ms. Roberts. "People came forward with many historic items and that's how we got started," said Ms. Roberts.

Later, the museum focused on the agricultural history of the town and began collecting farming tools and apparatus, and raised funds to put an addition, a replica of a 200 year old barn, onto the building to house the collection. The Carriage House collection includes antique vehicles, a complete blacksmith shop, a 1890 kitchen, a saltworks model, antique farming equipment and domestic artifacts of a bygone era.

The crowd walked down Church Street and stopped at the empty field next to the Town Hall. "This was known as 'The Little Belt', or town firehouse," said Ms. Roberts, noting that the apparatus that was housed there is now in the museum's Carriage House. Each fireman had his own bucket and would run to the firehouse to get to the fire. "Off they'd go, to help save the foundation," joked Ms. Roberts.

Ms. Roberts encouraged the crowd to speak up if they had information on any of the homes along the route. "We learn from everyone," she said. Arnette (Jenkins) Peccini, who has lived in town since 1941 provided several interesting comments on the various homes along the walk. "We don't share enough about what we know," said Ms. Peccini.

Along Main Street, Ms. Roberts told a story about town clerk Abner Harlow who mistakenly issued a dog license to a couple seeking a marriage license. After realizing his error, he went off on his bicycle and told the couple "If ye ain't done it, don't do it, tain't for it."

A Mattapoisett legend, unable to be proven, was that during the war of 1812, a British ship came into the harbor and people were so fearful that they piled up

Resident Robert Barnes was impressed with the large number of participants on the walk and said that Mattapoissett village was a rare place. "What's so special is that most of the village is still intact, like Sturbridge Village. Every second building you pass goes back to the

Property Lot Line Issues Discussed

Marion Planning Board

By Joan Hartnett-Barry

A regular meeting of the Marion Planning Board was called to order by Chairman Jay Ryder on Monday, August 8, at 7:00 pm in the Marion Town Hall. Also present were board members John Sweeney, Ted North, Tom Magauran and Planning Board Secretary Terry Santos.

The first order of business was a discussion regarding a proposed Approval Not Required Plan at 56 Allen Street care of Bill Madden. Mr. Madden represented the property owner, David Knott.

At issue was a minor property line dispute, which the two neighbors have resolved, giving 290 square feet of area from the Knott property to the abutter. Both lots are non-conforming. Mr. Madden said that he spoke with building commissioner Scott Shippey who indicated, in his opinion, that after the transfer, the lots would still meet the critical setback requirements.

Mr. Magauran said that he didn't believe that a non-conforming lot could be made smaller or more non-conforming and that town counsel should be consulted. "It makes sense, but is it technically possible?" asked Mr. Magauran. The board agreed to refer the issue to town counsel Jon Witten.

The next order of business was a continued Public Hearing for J and W Realty Trust, 119 Wareham Street care of Nate Canto for an Amendment to Site Plan/ Special Permit. Chairman Ryder said that with only four board members present, a decision would not be made at the meeting. Mr. Canto spoke briefly and said that he continued to work on the landscaping and parking issues, which have been ongoing. The board agreed to continue the Public Hearing until 5:10 pm on September 6, 2011.

Under Old/New Business, the board held a discussion regarding a proposed ANR Plan at 61 Oakdale Avenue for the Allard/Botehlo Families, care of Lynn Turner. Ms. Turner represented property owner Denise Allard. At issue was a lot of land, with a home and garage, which was left by a father to his two daughters, Denise Allard and Joan Botehlo in 2006.

Town by-laws require equal area and equal frontage on the road, but the dividing line goes through the garage on the property. Ms. Turner presented several

Jay Gould, DVM

ANTIFREEZE POISONING

My dog was in the garage with me as I was changing the antifreeze in my car. He sniffed the old antifreeze and was going to drink it. I stopped him. Would it make him sick?

Antifreeze (Ethylene glycol) has a sweet smell that is, unfortunately, attractive to dogs. It can cause kidney failure if the dog is not treated within 4-6 hours after drinking this poison. If you see your dog or cat drinking antifreeze, take him to your veterinarian immediately.

versions of how the issue might be resolved, including a zig-zag in property line to avoid moving the garage and several other options. "We are trying to find a way to do this," said Ms. Turner.

After reviewing the various options presented, Mr. Magauran suggested asking town council about any flexibility the town might have in resolving the matter. Ms. Turner said that if the Planning Board couldn't help resolve it, the matter would be brought to Land Court. The board agreed to refer the issue to town council and get back to the applicant with the opinion. Minutes of the June 20, 2011 meeting were approved. With no more business to come before the board, they adjourned at 7:43 pm.

In other business, the board did not formally endorse a petition to stop removal of Hathaway Pond Dam. A July 15 letter to the board from Alewives Anonymous, and more specifically Greenwood "Woody" Hartley III, argued that the elimination of the pond would have a negative effect on surrounding ground water levels, negatively impact the bogs due to a drop in the water level, and would hinder the spawning of herring that takes place at the pond.

environmental engineering experience, said he did not support the petition. He said because the pond does not house a fish ladder, it in reality serves as a "barrier."

"Although [removing the pond] initially looks negative, it will end up being a positive thing for the herrings," he said. He said that herrings existed before the pond was established for the bogs, and that water will naturally find its course over time to their benefit.

The board ultimately decided not to act on the letter and consider it as informational.

In other news, the Board of Selectmen formally released Decas Cranberry property on Acushnet Road from the provisions of state law Chapter 61A. Ian Ward, present at the meeting, said the 113 acres would be purchased by the Coalitions for Buzzards Bay for the purpose of conservation.

In other action items, the board:

- Approved a "One Day Special Liquor License" for the Annual Clamboil and Lobster fundraiser at the Mattapoisett YMCA on September 17
- Appointed Cathy Barrows and Melody Pacheco to the Tax Rate Relief Committee
- Approved the re-painting and marking of handicapped spaces at the Free Public Library, Center School, Old Hammondtown, Highway Department, Town Hall, Town Wharf, Baptist St and on Barstow St. adjacent to the Mattapoisett Congregational Church.

The petition is signed by more than 450 concerned citizens including: Rochester and Marion Selectmen, Marion Conservation Commission members, Representative Bill Straus, over a dozen cranberry growers from Rochester, Marion, Mattapoiset, and Carver, business owners, engineers, doctors, lawyers, neighbors, retirees, homeowners, and hundreds of local citizens. They want their voices heard and they want the dam repaired and Hathaway Pond restored.

Leaders in this effort include: Doug Beaton (owner Beaton's Inc.), Dave Watling (Rochester Herring Inspector), Jim Gurney (Marion Herring Inspector), Arthur Benner, (President of Alewives Anonymous), and Fred Underhill (former Rochester Selectman, current member of the Historic Commission and Water Commissioner).

You should also be aware of documents from Alewives Anonymous, Mass Division of Marine Fisheries and Herring Inspector, all stating that Hathaway Pond is a spawning area for herring. Their expert opinions are supported by several Mass DMR studies on the issue and your own report from Inter-Fluve, Inc. It may not be the ideal spawning location, however is has been the most Community based projects such as this are always supposed to have broad and overwhelming support from those who are most affected. Your designs on Hathaway Pond and the Dam are not supported. The community does not want the Hathaway Pond ecosystem changed. No elected or appointed boards in Rochester or Marion have endorsed this project.

The pond was full of fish, reptiles, birds, and mammals. It was a spawning ground for herring, home to swans, geese, otters and hundreds of other creatures. It was a reservoir available to local farmers for frost protection, irrigation, harvest and winter flooding. It was available for fishing, kayaking and just plain relaxation. It was millions of gallons of water and acres of wetlands that had survived for centuries. It was a recreational, agricultural and fisheries resource. We want it back.

When you purchased the dam you knew it was in disrepair and that an order from DCR was in-place. You knew or should have known that at least one abutter had deeded property rights. The permitting process relies heavily on public meetings and has many levels of regulatory oversight. This process is designed so that all important information can be reviewed and weighed, and so that local interests can be prioritized before permitting any significant and permanent changes to long standing ecosystems.

We hope that you will understand and respect the wishes of our community to restore Hathaway Pond as a valuable fishery, agricultural and recreational resource.

Dear Editor:

Because I had the courage, confidence and certitude to speak out on behalf of my mother regarding the dangerous and illegal bolting of sliding glass doors at the Mattapoissett Housing Authority, it appears someone with a close connection to that entity is out to teach me a lesson. The new Michelin tires on my car were maliciously slashed in the Village Court parking lot between the hours of 7:00 pm on Friday night, August 5 and 6:00 am, and Saturday morning August 6. I have notified the appropriate authorities.

I refuse to be silenced by thugs, louts and cowards. A top to bottom investigation of the shenanigans and incompetence at the Mattapoissett Housing Authority is needed now more than ever, particularly, since this spineless act was perpetrated against a senior citizen. The vicious tire slashing and keying of automobiles are all indicative of the dysfunction and paranoia that reigns at the Mattapoisett Housing Authority, and the reason tenants are petrified to come forward and complain about significant issues regarding their health and safety. Tenants will suffer leaking faucets, leaking pipes under their sinks, inoperable glass sliding doors, stifling hallway temperatures of 99 degrees, malfunctioning kitchen and bathroom lights, moths and holes in ceilings without complaining. This speaks volumes about the level of fear generated by the repressive and despotic management. There is a palpable lack of trust and huge credibility gap between rational thinking tenants and MHA officials.

Also, there has been no activity to repair, restore or replace doors and screens so they are operable. The maintenance man has been missing most of the week, except for a few brief early morning sightings when he was observed leaving the complex before 7:00 am.

*Sincerely,
Eileen Marum*

Hall for a bus tour of the town's farms and industries of days gone by, we saw Bobbi Gaspar on her cell phone pacing out front. Then, we were greeted by Bob Spooner at the door and were told the buses for the tour never showed, however, he welcomed us inside to listen to an oral history of the town conducted by Ruth Bates (complete with visual displays) with contributions by Bob Spooner, Barry Denham, Ed Sylvia, Sylvia Fales, and others, enjoying a round circle town informational discussion of times gone by in Mattapoisett.

In addition, Bette Roberts, graciously opened the Mattapoisett Historical Museum for residents to browse while waiting. The atmosphere at the legion was both relaxed and captivating; the committee members offered the patrons a cold beverage. It was then announced that Bobbi was successful in obtaining Charles Hiller to drive the senior van for the tour, the snag; nine people at a time. People were then given a choice to wait or be refunded. We are glad we chose to wait as the bus tour included information that we, (although living in this town all or most of our lives) were unaware of. Again, thanks to all who made the Mattapoisett Heritage Days bus tour a memorable and successful occasion. We look forward to next year's events.

*Sincerely,
John, Sylvia, and Debbie Camacho*

To the Editor:

The Lions year ended on June 30 but for me it went through Harbor Days. This year's festival was an unqualified success. Many members of the Mattapoisett Lions and Lions from surrounding towns volunteered many hours to make this event as successful as it is. All their hard work would be for nothing if the Town of Mattapoisett was not behind Harbor Days 100 percent.

Without the cooperation and assistance of the Fire Department, Police Department, Board of Selectmen, Building Inspection, Highway Department, Town Administrator and their staff Harbor Days would not be the great festival we all enjoyed last week. On behalf of the Mattapoisett Lions, I want to express my sincere gratitude for all that the Town does to make this a success. I wish I could name everyone individually but there are so many and I don't want to forget anyone. Thank you, thank you, thank you!

I also wanted to tell you all about a couple of firsts for Harbor Days. On Friday evening towards the end of their set Mike Couto of Couto and Mulligan sang a very special song. Just as he finished this beautiful love song the words "will you marry me?" were broadcast on the ceiling of the tent just over the stage. The answer was yes, by the way!

The other first involved the Whale Boats excursions and an unfortunate couple in rowing out to their boat on Sunday afternoon. The winds were very strong and the harbor was quite choppy. The couple had just passed the floating dock on middle wharf when a wave came over the bow swamping the dinghy. They ended up capsizing and drifting into the wharf. The staff from Whaling City Rowing Club jumped into the whaling boat, moved to the stern as it was hanging past the end of the floating dock and were able to rescue the couple and their gear and bring them safely unto the dock.

So we had a very exciting Harbor Days in more ways than we planned, but as the old saying goes "All's well that ends well". And Harbor Days ended well for all involved.

Thank you again to the Town and everyone there who helped and all the volunteers from the various clubs

"Heritage Hunt: Researching Your Ancestry", featuring local historian Lynda Ames. This educational program, sponsored by the Sippican Historical Society, is offered free and requires no reservations. Ms. Ames will share her vast knowledge of research methods both traditional and technological, and will include an online demonstration of how to utilize the many Internet resources now available.

A historian and genealogical researcher for more than 30 years, Wareham native Lynda Ames has not only uncovered her own family history, but has assisted and encouraged many others in the same pursuit. During her years at the Wareham Free Library, she worked as research coordinator in the history room, directed a genealogy club and created a monthly "Memories" group to encourage town seniors to share their recollections of an earlier time and way of life. To raise both historic awareness and funds for the preservation of the Wareham Free Library archival collection, she co-authored the book, Images of America: Wareham.

In her quest to preserve the histories of local towns and their residents, Ms. Ames often lectures on obscure and forgotten events and most recently has written In the Dark Woods of Wareham: Murder of the Egg Man, the true tale of a heinous 1885 local murder.

For more information on Ms. Ames' program or any of the Sippican Historical Society's offerings, please call 508-748-1116 or visit the SHS Museum, open

Food Director Leaves Healthy Legacy

By Laura Fedak Pedulli

When Old Rochester Regional School District Food Service Director Suzanne Souza first introduced new, healthier menu offerings – salads, wraps and sandwiches – at Rochester Memorial School last winter, the staff expected 35 orders on the first day. Instead, the cafeteria was hit with 175 orders.

Soon the menu was rolled out in other district schools, with the result being that more kids (and teachers!) purchased school lunch and fewer spent their money on a la carte items. The healthier items were offered in addition to the regular lunch, and later during the year vegetarian and gluten-free items were added to the school menu.

The move to healthier foods in the Old Rochester Regional schools is just one of Suzanne Souza's many legacies she will pass on when she steps down at the end of this month.

The Food Service Director, who has been in the district for five years, announced her resignation a few weeks ago. Ms. Souza – who is known to put in 60 to 80 hours of work per week during busy times – said that it was time to step in a new direction.

"I'm sad to go, I liked working here. But things change and you need to move on," said Ms. Souza, who just accepted employment in the Norton Public School system.

During her tenure at Old Rochester, she has put much energy into revitalizing the food program on many levels. Under her leadership, the district not only enjoyed healthier foods, but she sought out more local distributors to supply produce, invited in a local chef to train staff and prepare meals for a day, and oversaw a new paint job for the junior high and high school cafeteria.

Last March, for instance, when a local chef prepared veggie burgers and soup, the high school students embraced it and many meals were purchased that day. Also, Ms. Souza got creative and offered "green eggs and ham" during as part of an event celebrating Dr. Seuss at Center School.

Hammondtown said she has seen remarkable changes under Ms. Souza.

"It's always a good experience with her. She's done a lot to change the food program around and implement more healthy meals for the kids. Things really took on a nice direction under her watch... I'm very sorry to see her go," said Ms. Daniel, who under Ms. Souza facilitated the daily delivery of 130 meals.

And as the numbers bear out Ms. Souza's changes did making a difference. At the junior high and high school, school lunch counts increased by 2,951 meals for last school year as of June.

Among new healthier items, Ms. Souza introduced yogurt parfaits and improved upon the pizza by having staff prepare it from scratch. "We've worked a lot to cut back on processed items," she said, noting that staff want to prepare more items from scratch but that would require additional training.

She said the staff "does sneaky things" like add pureed yams to spaghetti sauce to make the meals healthier. New government regulations that will go into effect the next year or so also are prompting changes like new requirements on sodium limits and restrictions on flavored milk.

Ms. Souza worked under particularly challenging conditions due to budgetary constraints – which will continue to plague the district next year. Although the junior high and high school's account is in the black, all of the elementary schools run at a deficit.

To cut down costs, Ms. Souza did sign up the school district to the SouthCoast Collaborative, which reduced food costs by $19,397 this past year. However, she feels that much can be done to bring costs in line with revenues, including cutting staff hours and food costs, and charging what it costs to make the meals. The joint school committee did vote to increase the school lunch price by a quarter at all district schools to help with the budget and ensure that meals are compensated the same amount for free-and-reduced lunches as regular purchases.

Talking about what she is most proud of, Ms. Souza said, "that the kitchens are run like a well-oiled machine... I put my heart and soul into [the job]."

"I hear from students they didn't want to come back to school, but they did miss lunch," she said of the best feedback she has received.

Ms. Souza's final day is scheduled for August 31.

The group evolved out of weekly sessions or "workshops" where particular musical problems were addressed in an experimental format. These meetings served as an opportunity to explore the open interpretation of both traditional and original repertoire, and the resulting group dynamic was complete. Primarily performing as a horn trio, the musicians explored and interacted with one another "in the moment", stretching and manipulating the "musical DNA" of the given material. This approach helped to promote a highly modern and ever-evolving interpretation of the works chosen to be presented. # MOVIE REVIEW

Monkey Business

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Rise of the Planet of the Apes.* Starring James Franco and Andy Serkis. Directed by Rupert Wyatt. Running time: 120 minutes. MPAA rating: PG-13.

The Planet of the Apes movies were never really about apes. They were about the flaws of humanity, shown to us in a funhouse mirror. In the original 1968 film, the arrogant Charlton Heston found out what it was like to be caged, silenced, treated as inferior and stupid. In other words, the white man got a taste of what it was like to be non-white. (It was 1968, and screenwriter Rod Serling never met a heavy-handed metaphor he didn't like.) This summer's new iteration, Rise of the Planet of the Apes, is different in that it really is about the apes. The simians don't seem to represent anything other than themselves, the low men on the evolutionary totem pole, who through the misguided magic of science gain intelligence and sunder their chains.

Rise is a top-flight summer entertainment, beautifully photographed (Andrew Lesnie), edited (Conrad Buff, Mark Goldblatt) and scored (Patrick Doyle). It moves with heedless animal momentum towards the moment when the assorted monkeys, led by super-smart chimp Caesar (Andy Serkis), suck the air of freedom into their cavernous nostrils and bellow in triumph. It's a crackerjack fantasy, but it's also an anti-human one, and that will bother some people. Me, I felt at times that the film's PG-13 rating hindered it. The apes' revolution is largely bloodless and, with a couple of exceptions, glossed over. Given what we see them suffer in the movie, and given what we know real primates endure in experimentation labs by the hundreds, I wanted more. I wanted monkey fangs tearing the screaming faces off of soccer moms in their gas-hoarding SUVs; I wanted claws hollowing out the soft bellies of suburban dads plump with the flesh of abused livestock, with their spoiled Wii-addicted children saved for snacks. I wanted intestines coiled on the sidewalks, dangling from the well-manicured trees. But that's just me. The monkeys are nicer.

Caesar's smarts come genetically, from his mother, a test subject for an Alzheimer's cure. The cure's creator (James Franco) has a personal stake in it: his dad (John Lithgow) is losing his mind to the disease. Adopted by Franco and girlfriend Freida Pinto, Caesar learns a whole lot but misses out on the chest-beating glory of Being Ape. Locked in with his species peers after a protective assault on Franco's contemptible neighbor, Caesar knows what he has to do. In an earlier, poignant scene, Caesar asked Franco through sign language, "Is Caesar a pet? What is Caesar?" Now he learns what he is, or what his role will be. The scenes in which Caesar carries out his plans, showing more brains than many a human character in summer blockbusters, are gratifying. Every slice of simian pushback aggression towards cruel humans primes us for the uprising.

When it comes, the apes again rely more on strategy than on head-bashing ferocity. Their battle is exultant without being sadistic. In one legitimately great sequence, a towering gorilla faces off against a cop on horseback (I'm not sure, realistically, why there are cops on horseback here, other than a callback to the 1968 film), fells him, looks as if he's about to rip his helmeted head off, then just roars into his face, spraying spit all over his faceguard. The apes, I take it, have been discouraged by Caesar to kill men unless absolutely necessary; this gorilla, having near-definitively proven who the new boss is, senses that it's sufficient to leave it at that. I wouldn't have.

The acting here is functional (though Lithgow brings authentic heartbreak to his Caesar-in-reverse performance), with one dazzling and widely-noted exception: Andy Serkis, performing Caesar through motion capture (as he did with Gollum and King Kong), makes him a complex and emotionally accessible creature without anthropomorphizing him much. As the film goes on, and Caesar sheds some of the softness of his human upbringing and embraces the way of the ape, Serkis suggests that a fusion of homo-sapien ratiocination and powerful apehood would produce a shrewd and not remotely huggable hero. Bouncing around the confines of the colorful indoor playpen Franco has made for him in the attic, Caesar is cute. But he yearns for open air, the imposing redwoods, nature unconquered by man and his steel teeth. Standing tall and noble among his ape minions, Caesar is no longer cute. If he were human, we would say he has become a man. But in this case, that would be a grievous insult to him.

Everyone is encouraged to submit up to three recipes. They can be photocopied, hand written, or typed and dropped off at the library, or emailed to mattcooksandcooks@gmail.com. ### Mass Audubon Photo Contest

Calling all shutterbugs! The deadline to submit photographs to Mass Audubon's second statewide photo contest, "Picture This: Your Great Outdoors", is right around the corner: Monday, September 5. Hurry and send in your digital images that highlight the beauty and diversity of Massachusetts wildlife, habitats, and people in nature.

"We had such an amazing response to last year's contest," says Mass Audubon President Laura Johnson. "We received more than a thousand stunning images, and we hope that this year even more people will show us what inspires them to connect with the natural world."

Entrants of all ages and abilities are invited to submit their photos. Two Grand Prize Winners' photos (one student, one adult) will be featured on the cover of a Mass Audubon publication. Two winning entries for Best Mass Audubon Wildlife Sanctuary Photo will be featured inside a Mass Audubon publication. All winning entries, including Honorable Mentions, will be featured on Mass Audubon's website (www.MassAudubon.org), which receives more than a million visits per year.

Participants may submit up to five digital images taken in Massachusetts or at Mass Audubon's Wildwood Camp in Rindge, New Hampshire. The contest is open to amateur and professional photographers in one of two categories: adults (age 18 and older) and students (under 18). Black-and-white and color photos taken at any time prior to or during the photo contest are eligible, providing contest rules are met. Contest ends September 5, 2011. To submit photos and view the complete rules, visit: www.MassAudubon.org/picturethis.

Mass Audubon works to protect the nature of Massachusetts for people and wildlife. Together with more than 100,000 members, we care for 34,000 acres of conservation land, provide educational programs for 225,000 children and adults annually, and advocate for sound environmental policies at local, state, and federal levels. Mass Audubon's mission and actions have expanded since our beginning in 1896 when our founders set out to stop the slaughter of birds for use on women's fashions. Today we are the largest conservation organization in New England. Our statewide network of wildlife sanctuaries, in 90 Massachusetts communities, welcomes visitors of all ages and serves as the base for our work. To support these important efforts, call 1-800-AUDUBON (283-8266) or visit www.massaudubon.org.

The 10 and Under USTA Program uses a progressive approach to teach juniors the skills they need to play real tennis shortly after picking up a racquet. Children learn using larger tennis balls that are slower, lighter and bounce lower than conventional tennis balls. Additionally, the court size is reduced to make it easier for children to play. USTA instructors have received training and have had experience in working with junior tennis players.

A session is being offered through August 18. Participants will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays within the session. Fees are $15 per session. Session times are:

- 5-7 year olds: 4-4:45 or 4:45-5:30 pm.
- 8-10 year olds: 5:30-6:30 or 6:30-7:30 pm.

I Found the Aardvark!

Each week, hidden somewhere in the pages of The Wanderer is a tiny drawing of an aardvark. The little guy you are looking for looks exactly like the one pictured above (but don't put down this page as your answer, there's another one hidden somewhere in this issue).

Once you find the aardvark you can submit your answer online and if you are right you will get Aardvark Points! You can then use these points to get cool Aardvark Prizes!

Each time you find the Aardvark you will also be entered in our monthly drawing for other cool Aardvark Prizes.

If you would like to enter the monthly drawing by mail, send your name, address and phone number along with the issue date and page number you found him in to: Wanderer - I Found the Aardvark, P.O. Box 102, Mattapoisett, MA 02739. Entries by mail will not be eligible for Aardvark Points.

To enter visit: www.wanderer.com and Click on "I Found the Aardvark"

In the August 4, 2011 issue
